CHRIST'S PORTRAIT -- "No authentic picture of Christ." says the Independent, and no trustworthy description of His appearance has come down to us. It is remarkable that the four Evangelists should have agreed in omitting just what every other biographer or novelist is careful to give. Nowhere have we a hint as to His personal figure or as to a lineament of Ais countenance. Some have guessed that He was fairer than all the fair, and others have presumed that his countenance was marred more than any man; but no one knows. The conventional picture of Jesus, which seems to us His certain portrait, is not older than Michael Angelo."

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, JAMES B. McCREARY.

Of Madison.

CAPT. TODD does not meet Gov. McCreary in joint debate, but relies on the old republican plan of still-hunting. His party always votes its full strength anyway, and more especially will they do so now that they are buoyed with victory in this and several other judicial diitricts. It behooves democrats therefore to be equally alert and see that their full yote is polled. The republicans are making atrenuous efforts to carry the next House, and although they do not appear to be making much of a lost many a battle, especially with General democratic; a small margin, when we consider that a hundred stay-at-home democrate in each county would more than tura the scale. We therefore call upon the workers especially to be up and doing to may be shown at the polls. Governor Mc for it that it is as fine looking as it is repthan before and it should be the pride of The election occurs on the 21 day days for work. See that they are used to the best advantage.

THE Louisville Times declares straight out for John G. Carlisle to succeed Sanator Beck, and adds that Mr. Beck's term does not expire until March 3, 1889, the day on which Mr. Cleveland will complete his first term as President, and Mr. Cartisle his third as Speaker of the House of Reprerentatives. On the following day we hope and expect to see Mr. Cleveland sworn in for a second term as President and Mr Carlisle take the oath of office as United States Senator. Four years later Mr. Cleveland's successor will be installed in the his name will be John G. Carlisle. Mr. Beck is old and rich and he is getting older and richer every day. . THE great trouble with the Knights of own importance and instead of attending trict. strictly to matters that are within the scope of their especial province, they make unconsidered demands and strive to dictate both national and private affairs. For instance, we agree with a contemporary that they should let alone the question of buying out the telegraph wires, and addservice. The people do not want their telegraphic correspondence under government surveillance and they do not want the standing army of officials doubled in size. Aside from the cost of buying out the telegraph companies and increasing the power of the office-holding class, the postal telegraph scheme is extremely objectionable.

THE law provides that Congressmen shall be voted for by ballot, "the ballots to be on them the name of the person voted for, without other distinguishing marks, each to be folded so as not to show any part of the name written or printed on it." The law is very specific and unless it is complied with to the letter, the ballots are not counted, Keep this in mind when you vote for Gov. McCreary on the 2d of Nov. Printed bailots will be provided, so that no mistake can be made and nothing whatever must be written or marked upon them.

THE Courier Journal says of our excellent representative: "Hon. J. B. McCreary, a son of good fortune, is making a trium. phal tour of the 8th Congressional district. For personal and satisfactory reasons, not wholly disconnected from the discomfort attendant upon being used as a mop, his republican opponent does not accompany him. The Governor has made up his mind not only to get there, but to get there in the finest sort of shape. It may not be inappropriate to remark that the Governor is a daisy, and always gets there."

THE most moral and high-sounding reso'utions that we have read for a long time were those adopted by the Liquor Manufacturers at Chicago. . They earnestly favor temperance and strongly condemn intem perance, acknowledge the supreme duty of all good citizens to obey the laws of the country and condemn every violation of law, but express an unalterable opposition to prohibitory laws as an invasion of the rights of citizens, therefore wrong in princi ple and impracticable in policy. They indorse the high license system and promise to co-operate with the officers of the law to prevent the issue of license to disreputable places. J. M. Atherton, of Louisville, was elected president of the association and J. D Pratt, of Kentucky, secretary.

THE democrats in the 11th district are far from being confident of the election of Major Botts, but they should redouble their energies and prevent such a calamity as Charleston sufferers. the selection of Judge Finley. THE Grand Lodge of Master Masons in session at Louisville is about as representative a body of men as could be assembled the end that the full strength of the party and we have the Louisville papers' word Creary deserves an even larger majority resentative. There are 500 delegates in attendance. We observe that they have every democrat to assist in giving it to adopted an important resolution which reads as follows: The use of intoxicating of November, so there remains less than 10 liquors as a beverage is the greatest detriment to the growth and prosperity of the fraternity, therefore be it resolved that the business of saloon-keeping be deemed a Masonic offense, and punishable as other offenses contrary to the rules of the order.

THE whisky men in convention at Chicago, "viewing with alarm the spread of prohibition," have resolved to raise a million and a half dollars to resist the growing sentiment. It will be money thrown away. Prohibition, like a tidal wave, is sweeping the country and for one we are very willing to see her sweep. The good book informs us that it is a poor business to kick against the pricks, and we never do it if we White House, and we hope and believe that know it. If the people prefer prohibition to high license, let them try it and if it works well we shall be pleased to chronicle

JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

AM EMACIATED FORM, TOTTERING STEPS AND SHRUNKEN CHEEK.

The Old Poet a Mere Shadow of His Former Self-He Seldom Goes Beyond the Confines of His Rooms-Reads but

In a large and luxuriously furnished apartment in a four-story brown stone house on State street, in the city of Albany, and almost within a stone's throw of the great capitol, sits or walks or reclines throughout the day a man of 70 years of age. With hair that is silvery white, a full beard that is gray white, a form that is bent and emaciated, a step that is slow and tottering, and a cheek that is pallid and shrunken-his blue eyes, yet full and lustrous, alone indicate the strength and pride of other days. This man is John Godfrey Saxe, the poet.

The old poet is now much changed in form and feature, being merely a shadow of his former self. During the first three years of his residence in Albany he spent some hours each pleasant day in strolling about the beautiful park near by, or tranquilly sitting there in a shady arbor, watching the children at their play. But during the past two years no public eye has seen him, for in that long interval he has of his own choice been carefully secluded in his room. He neither rides nor wasks abroad. The apartment in which he spends his melancholy days consists of a suite of three rooms, located in the rear end of the house, on the third floor, and overlooking the noble Hudson to the south.

WATCHING THE RIVER CRAFT. Here by the window he whiles away much of his time in watching the busy river craft and in contemplating the picturesque land-scape. Of street attire he no longer has a need; in dressing gown and slippers he paces the floor with slow and trembling steps, seldom or never going beyond the confines of his own rooms. He prefers to have perfect quiet about him, and oftentimes dislikes to be disturbed even by a member of his own family.

It is a long time since he last consented to receive a stranger, or even a friend, or an acquaintance of former days.

"I cannot bear," he said, with pathos, "to be fercibly reminded of what I once was-of the days of my hope and strength, when the world had charms that now are dead to me; before sickness had deprived me of my health and death had robbed me of my loved ones."
In 1881, on his first coming to Albany, the emiaent physicians whom his family consulted in his behalf predicted that he would not survive two years longer. He goes to bed between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening, and rises at about 6:30 in the morning. He complains much of insomnia, and during the day is often very restless, suffering from neuralgia in the head. When not sitting in an easy chair or moving leisurely about his room, he reclines upon couch. He eats often but very sparingly, and partakes of the plainest of food, indiges tion being one of his principal bodily ills. Of his valet, a middle-aged colored man (who by reason of prior service with eminent people at Washington and other places is more than ordinarily intelligent and entertaining), the poet is very fond, chatting with him now and again with a more than usual degree of in-

READS COMPARATIVELY LITTLE. te recently he devoted a good share of his time to a perusal of the standard poets and the leading magazines, those of the latter to whose pages he was once a valued contributor being still sent him regularly and unsolicited by the publishers thereof, in kindly remembrance of past services. For some years he has not read the daily papers, and evinces little or no interest in current "It pains me," he said, "to meet with the details of so much crime and so many casual-

Indeed, he reads comparatively little of any kind now—occasionally a page or two, may be, of one of his favorite prose authors, that mainly consist of Hawthorne, Dickens and Thackeray, judiciously selecting therefrom matter of cheerful tone and subject. When undisturbed he is much given to musing; but at times will converse willingly and fluently, displaying thereby a power of memory that, in view of his feeble physical condition, is quite unlooked for, recently surprising his son not a little by reciting verbatim one of

Charles Lamb's longest essays. His thoughts often revert to his irreparable loss of wife and children, speaking of each tenderly and regretfully, and manifesting a keen interest in the proper care of their graves—ever dwelling on the domestic afflic-tions which have broken his heart, and enveloped his once brilliant intellect in a brooding and incurable melancholy.-Brooklyn Maga-

Young Ladies on the Beach.

Away out on the Pacific coast a poor, weak man sought to disprove the allegation that women by choice always sit down on the floor or ground to put on or off shoes and stockings. He placed some benches on the beach, where a number of young ladies were in the habit of occasionally going to wade in the water. They came and glosfully took possession of the benches, but when they made up their minds that they wanted to wade down they all sat on the ground to unlace their shoes. Next day this poor, weak man had his servant spread broken glass, oyster shells, etc., on the beach and then waited, only to see the girls at wading time industriously clear away the stuff until they had room enough to sit down. Then he went away and marveled.—Chicago Herald.

Wheat on the Sage Brush Land. In the spring of 1883 the land department of the Central Pacific railroad decided to make a faithful experiment of wheat growing on the sage brush land of Nevada without irrigation. At first the experiment was a partial failure, but this year has proved a most gratifying success, the land yielding fifteen bushels to the acre, and the quality of wheat being good. The result of this experiment would seem to indicate that the sage brush land of Nevada is worth something after all, in which case the state may become something more than a pocket borough .-New York Tribune.

Cutting Into a Grape Shot. Southern saw mills are occasionally cutting into a grape shot imbodded in trees during the late war, and a firm that makes saws publishes as an advertisement a statement of a saw mill owner that the finely tempered saw he bought of the said firm had sawed clear through one of them, one and one-fourth inches in diameter, without hurting the saw, and that he cut two more logs into lumber before stopping, and then needed only thirty-five minutes for filing before going on as good as new .-- Chicago Times.

To Avoid Drowning. Persons who wish to avoid drowning are advised by an eastern physician to lock the hands behind the back, fully inflate the lungs and close the mouth.

To wemen a headache is a good friend that mover contradicts them. -Balzac.

TISSUE FLOWERS AND PARTIES.

The Beautiful Art Which Is Taking the

Place of the Crazy Quilt. Tissue paper flowers are the feminine craze now. The show windows are resplendent with tulips, roses, daisies, poppies and violets made out of tissue paper, and young ladies of society are devoting hours to acquiring the art of their manufacture. It is a pastime particularly interesting, and it is remarkable what beautiful floral effects are produced with colored paper, a little wire, a little glue, and a pair of scissors. An enterprising manufacturing company has taken advantage of the craze, and has put up in boxes an assertment of different colup in boxes an assertment of different col-ored tissue paper, with a small coil of fine wire and a few pieces of very fine soft rub-ber pipe, to be used for stems. These boxes together with a pamphlet of instructions, are sold at a trifling sum by the thousands. Young ladies with no knowledge of the manufacture of artificial flowers, it is said, can, with the contents of one of these boxes, and by the aid of the book of instructions, produce the most natural domestic flowers with a little practice.

"Tissue-paper parties" have already be-come popular. The fashionable world al-ways eagerly welcomes any new entertain-ment which promises to be both novel and amusing, and it has taken hold of the tissuepaper mania. At these quiet little assemblages not only striking effects in flowers are produced, but dresses are manufactured. The paper used at these affairs is imported, and comes in a most marvelous variety and beauty of color. Some of the garments made out of this flimsy material are exceedingly beautiful. As can be easily imagined, the variety of colors, shades, and tints is almost inexhaustible, and every kind of combination and effect are possible. In the matter of trimming there is scope for all sorts of imitations-flowers, fringes, ruffs, and a hundred and one furbelows which women only understand the name or the object of. There must be a great deal of satisfaction in a lady making such a dress and then viewing it with rapturous feminine delight, but this satisfaction can not, of course, be compared to that of the master of the house, who finds his relief in the fact that it costs but a few cents.

But it is the manufacture of flowers from this imported paper which has turned the young feminine mind upside down. In the wonderful craze for fancy work these paper flowers are much used for ornamentation. Roses and poppies much larger than nature are used for decorating lace curtains, pillow cases, backs of plush sofas and chairs, and easels. A very popular feature of the parlor is a basket of these flowers. The basket itself is made of dark-colored paper, without a foundation, simply in a ring, and the material is placed in folds. The flowers themselves are then laid on shavings, which fill out and keep the basket in shape. The handle, of wire, is covered with paper, with sweet peas or other climbing flowers, twined around it. Such a basket of flowers can scarcely be distinguished from wax. A skillful hand, however, is needed in their manufacture "The prettiest thing I have seen made of tissue paper is a mat representing a water lily," said a young lady the other day, while in conversation with the writer upon Gooth S. H. 2 days hauling... the subject. "The perfect form of the beautiful flower was reproduced. It was made upon a foundation of a very large leaf, and upon this leaves in graduated sizes are placed, the lower ones being of dark green, the center of very pale yellow, while the intermediate leaves were of graduated tints. You have no idea what a happy effect was produced."-New York Sup.
